Subject: Cultivation Public Information

Good Morning,

This email is in regards to concerns about the security of legal and licensed cultivation facilities and information pertaining to them that is available to them on the web.

We currently operate a licensed facility within the city of Anchorage. Recently, another cultivation facility, Danish Gardens, was burglarized where they incurred damages to the facility as well as product loss in excess of $150,000. Now while we have regulations pertaining to security and must exercise due diligence ourselves as owners, these efforts are jeopardized when all of our information is made public.

Information pertaining to the addresses of such businesses (non-retail) including the information of physical home addresses of licensee's not only place the business in danger but most definitely place the well being and safety of licensee's as well as the safety of our families at great risk. Such information should not be made public and so easily accessible via the internet. Criminals will stop at nothing to obtain such information and it's ease of access is very concerning.

I have researched our information on the internet and found that while there is some effort to black out information more needs to be done. I noticed several pages containing our SSN are blacked out. While this information needs to be blacked out as it is very personal and great importance, I also believe that information pertaining to the physical home addresses of such license holders should also be removed/blacked out.

Again, I write this email not to necessarily complain but to place fourth my concerns over the safety of people's lives and offer solutions. When we encounter problems, we like to be proactive and not reactive to a situation. I plead to your human nature and responsibility to public safety and ask that you take this into serious consideration as you sit with your own families tonight and as the holiday's near. Please feel free to contact me to discuss these matters further.

Warm Regards
