From:	Kim Herning
To:	Marijuana, CED ABC (CED sponsored)
Cc:	Audrey Ranstead
Subject:	Questions about manufacturing cannabis topicals
Date:	Sunday, January 28, 2018 5:33:10 PM

I have some questions about manufacturing cannabis topicals such as salve, lotion, and suppositories.

1. Would a manufacturer be limited to 50 mg. of THC in a jar of salve or lotion (like an edible product) ?

2 .For a topical product would a manufacturer be required to use packaging to show number of applications on the outside of said package (jar or tube) ?

3. If the salve or lotion contained a mixture of THC and CBD would the CBD also be counted in the total allowable amounts of THC. Example : jar of salve contains 50 mgs. THC and 100 mgs. CBD. Would this be permissible ?

4. Would a manufacturer be allowed to make suppositories and sex lube and would these products be considered topicals ?

5. Can a manufacturer who currently is in the process of being approved to manufacture edibles also manufacture cannabis topicals after submitting recipes and packaging ?

Thank you for answering my questions.
Sincerely,
Kim Dunshie-Herning
(907) 488-6443