Christina,

You can disregard my voicemail from earlier today. Denali's Cannabis Cache does have sole possession of the premises. The landlord has assigned suite numbers to all of the units/buildings on the property and we will update all of the submitted forms with the Suite 420 designation and will repost the public notice documents. Thank you for your assistance.

Good Morning Jason,

Denali's Cannabis Cache must have sole possession of the premises. Because there are multiple tenants in the building and they cannot all have the same premises address, there must be some distinction. All the other businesses have suite #'s correct?

Thanks,

Christina,

I am the attorney for Denali's Cannabis Cache. I am writing in response to the Incomplete Letter received on Friday, March 3. Thank you for your thorough review of the application.

Regarding the "Corrections related to Suites," I believe that Denali's Cannabis Cache should not need to resubmit all forms and revise public notice documents to include the Suite 420 identifier. This is because the designation of Suite 420 for Denali's Cannabis Cache is not an "official" address, and that is why it was not included on the forms submitted. The Suite 420 designation is not a formally recognized address with the Denali Borough or the State of Alaska. At this time there is no signage on the property identifying it as Suite 420 and no mail is sent to that address. Rather, Suite 420 (as well as all of the other “suites” listed in the shopping center at issue) is the property owner's personal identifier for the property, used for internal organization and recordkeeping. That is why Suite 420 was not included on any of the forms submitted, but was included in the lease agreement and premises diagram, as those documents came from the landlord.

In sum, the designation of Suite 420 does not provide the public with any additional information regarding the location of the property because the address Suite 420 does not technically exist. Identifying the property as Suite 420 will not help any interested member of the public learn the exact location of the licensed premises.

Therefore, rather than revise all of the forms and re-do the public notices, we suggest that Denali’s Cannabis Cache will instead remove the Suite 420 designation from any documents that have been submitted and resubmit them without listing Suite 420 in the address.

We are certainly willing to work with AMCO to make sure the application is complete and in an acceptable format, but here, if we included the Suite 420 designation on the official address, we would be listing an address that is not accurate. I apologize for the confusion caused by our inclusion of the Suite 420 designation, and would like to figure out the best way to proceed.

Please let us know your thoughts on this matter at your earliest convenience.

Thank you,
Jason Brandeis
