Skagway's robot masters take Champions Award at Juneau Jambore

By DAN FOX
EDITOR

Local FIRST LEGO League teams Prickles and Lily Inc. came away from the Dec. 9 Juneau Robot Jamboree as winners, with each team scoring an award at the competition.

"I feel that we did put our best effort into this, it took us actually a really long time to get our project done, and I'm pretty happy with what we came up with," said Prickles member Kenadie Cox.

Prickles repeated as winners of the Champions Award, an honor the team captured at 2016's jamboree as well.

"It feels pretty good, we couldn't have done it without Mindy and Andy [Miller] though," Conner Lawrence said of Prickles' coaches.

Last year, Lily Inc. wasn't able to make the jamboree, so 2017 marked the first year the four-student team competed at Juneau. The team's debut at the competition seemed to go well – Lily Inc. won the trophy for Top Robot Design.

"It's an exciting event for the kids," said Mary Tidlow, coach for Lily Inc.

Tidlow said teams are scored on robot design, team projects and the FIRST core values – "cooperition" and gracious professionalism. There are also secret judges that evaluate the teams throughout the day. At the end of the competition, the teams are given back a rubric grading them in those categories. Tidlow said Lily Inc.'s members were scored as "gracious professionals at the exemplary level."

"And that showed throughout their entire competition, and especially in the robotics," Tidlow said.

Lawrence said the other t[illegible] the Juneau competition had "cool" robot designs.

"Some of them were more [illegible] than others," Lawrence said. [illegible] Callia Fielding said many competitors' robots were tiny [illegible] the Prickles robot is big, boxy

Dolled up for the holidays

By DAN FOX
EDITOR

Eleven days before Christmas, a doll stands on Jean Worley's kitchen table with pins in her hair, the makings of a wedding veil being instructed about her head. Holding a bouquet of tiny flowers, the doll is wearing a white dress with red trimming, festooned with beadwork and silver highlights – a miniature copy of the very same wedding dress laid out as a guide on the table behind her.

It's a Christmas tradition, a scholarship fundraiser and community activity rolled into a pink, doll-sized trunk.

The Nancy Schave Memorial Scholarship Doll Raffle is hosted by the Eagle's Auxiliary, and is a long-standing holiday ministry in Skagway. Tickets for the doll are usually sold at the Bowler's and School bazaars, and sometimes at Fairway Market, and proceeds collected fund a $500 scholarship used for continuing education. The winner of the raffle gets a bevy of unique outfits, the doll and a pink suitcase to store the toy and all her accessories in.

Originally, Barb Brodersen said the American Legion began the doll raffle after World War II, and initially raised funds to combat leprosy. Once that disease was conquered, the raffle turned into a scholarship fundraiser.

The raffle changed hands to the American Legion Auxiliary around this time, and powered on under that group's guidance for many years.

After some time, the Eagles Auxiliary took the scholarship and raffle over, though the name of the contest stayed under the "American Legion Auxiliary" name for several years.
