>> I am writing to support the issuance of a Marijuana Cultivation Facility License to Carol Waldo, who owns property adjacent to mine at Helms Loop Road in Haines, Alaska.
>>
>> In my opinion, it would be a very good thing to re-purpose some of that property to that agricultural use, as it will benefit the community in a number of ways. For a starter, local people buy marijuana which is of unknown origin and quality. All that money leaves the community. Now that marijuana is legal for recreational use, the community will benefit from having a supply which is of known origin and quality. In addition, the sales will keep a substantial amount of money in the community while also generating tax income for our local government.
