Alaskans Invited to DASH for the STASH to Compete for $1000 Prize

Alaska Division of Banking and Securities and Investor Protection Institute launch investor education contest

May 5, 2017 ANCHORAGE – The Alaska Division of Banking and Securities invites Alaskans to compete in the DASH for the STASH program for a chance to win $1000. For the second year in a row, the Investor Protection Institute will present one winner in Alaska with a $1000 prize to open or add to an Individual Retirement Account (IRA). The DASH for the STASH investor education contest takes place through October 31, 2017.

The DASH for the STASH contest is played much like a scavenger hunt. However, instead of collecting objects, individuals collect information about saving and investing and answer quiz questions. To enter the contest, individuals visit a participating location where a set of the DASH for the STASH investor education and protection posters are displayed, read each poster, and then answer a corresponding quiz question. The posters cover four key topics: finding financial advisers, avoiding fraud, understanding investment fees, and building a nest egg.

“Investor education is a top priority of ours,” said Kevin Anselm, director of the Division of Banking and Securities. “Fighting investment scammers is only part of our job. We are also eager to equip Alaskans with the information they need to spot and avoid fraud.”

DASH for the STASH is being offered at public libraries, colleges, high schools, workplaces, and community organizations across Alaska. During the term of the contest, each location will hold a DASH for the STASH event. The Division of Banking and Securities is hosting two events: one event in Juneau on Monday, May 15 at the State Library Lecture Hall and another in Anchorage during fall 2017. The current list of event details, locations and dates is available at <http://www.iinvest.org/programs/dash-for-the-stash/dash-for-the-stash-2017-sites/>.

“Investor education has to be relevant to people to be most effective,” said Don Blandin, president and CEO of the Investor Protection Institute. “By bringing investor education to libraries and other community locations, we are ensuring that it is relevant to the lives of people and integrated directly into their lives.”

New in 2017 and running concurrently with the contest in Alaska, there will be a national online DASH for the STASH contest. Participants in the national contest have the opportunity to compete online for a chance to win one of seven $150 IRA contributions. The online contest is open to all Alaskans regardless of whether they participate in the state program. More information is available at iinvest.org/programs/dash-for-the-stash.

Learn about investing and play the DASH for the STASH at the Alaska State Library

JUNEAU – In connection with DASH for the STASH, the Alaska State Library will host David Newman and Leif Haugen of the Division of Banking and Securities for an introduction to investing on Monday, May 15, at 5:30 PM at the Andrew P. Kashevaroff Alaska State Libraries, Archives, and Museums, located at 395 Whittier St.

DASH for the STASH is an investor education and protection program and contest taking place through June 14 at the Alaska State Library. To participate in the contest, people can visit the Alaska State Library, read four educational posters, and answer online questions about the poster content. One statewide winner will be chosen in a random drawing of eligible participants who logged the correct answer for all four posters. The winner will receive a $1,000 contribution to an existing or new Individual Retirement Account (IRA) for 2017. The DASH for the STASH program is being launched in Alaska by the Alaska Division of Banking and Securities and the nonprofit Investor Protection Institute (IPI).

A person experiencing a disability who needs accommodation for events hosted by the Alaska State Libraries, Archives, and Museums can contact the Division's ADA coordinator at (907) 465-2988 to make any necessary arrangements.

The Alaska State Library provides research services for state employees, assists historical researchers and the public, manages Talking Book services for Alaskans with visual impairments, and collects Alaska-related books, photographs, manuscripts, newspapers, government documents, and periodicals. Hours at the Alaska State Library are Tuesday-Friday from 10AM to 4PM or Mondays by arrangement. For more information about the Library and its services, please visit <http://library.alaska.gov/>.
