Closing Your Real Estate Office

1. Determine the date your office closure will become effective.

2. Inform your licensees and arrange for them to transfer or inactivate their licenses.

3. Explain to your sellers/landlords that they will no longer have a contract with you and that they may enter into a new listing/management agreement with the broker of their choice.

4. Arrange for any pending transactions to be closed by a title company, lending institution, escrow company or attorney, and obtain consent to the changes from all principal parties. If the company is being sold or merging with another existing brokerage, the acquiring broker may close the transactions with the consent of the principal parties.

5. Remove signs from all properties listed or managed by the firm.

6. Arrange to cancel all advertising in the name of the firm, including newspaper advertising, office signs and telephone listing advertisements.

7. Disperse all trust monies to the appropriate closing entity, principal party, or specified licensed successor.

8. Notify the Real Estate Commission by:
   a. filing an office registration form to close your office.
   b. providing a bank statement showing a zero balance in your trust account(s).
   c. specifying the location where your transaction records for the last three years can be accessed.
   d. providing the name, address, and phone number of the custodian of the records for that three-year period of time.
   e. transferring or inactivating your own license.
